Dynamics of relationship between stock markets of SAARC countries during COVID-19 pandemic

Vandana Arya, Shveta Singh

Journal of Economic and Administrative Sciences (2025) 41 (1): 336–356

https://doi.org/10.1108/JEAS-10-2021-0213

Purpose

The paper investigates the dynamic relationship among the stock markets of South Asian Association of Regional Cooperation (SAARC) countries during the COVID-19 pandemic.

Design/methodology/approach

Daily time-series data of four SAARC countries: India, Bangladesh, Pakistan, and Sri Lanka, from February 13th, 2013 to March 31st, 2021 are used. The study considers stock prices prior to the blowout of COVID-19 and during the onset of the pandemic. The novel estimation procedure of the autoregressive distributed lag model is used while the results are also confirmed by post-estimation techniques.

Findings

The study confirms that the COVID-19 contagion has adversely influenced the stock returns of SAARC countries. The findings signify that the pattern of cointegration has significantly different regularities in the pattern of causality in the long run and short run during the COVID-19 crisis. Overall, the study revealed that the COVID-19 pandemic has weakened the dynamic connection among the stock markets of SAARC countries.

Practical implications

To dampen uncertainties generated by the COVID-19 pandemic, the authorities and central banks should be equipped with efficient strategies and guidelines to cope with the crisis created by the pandemic. Further, governments should focus on assuaging the panic faced by investors and enhancing the confidence of domestic as well as foreign investors. Further, the weakened integration of financial markets during the crisis offers opportunities for speculative and arbitrage gains for investors.

6.8 Teachers' Special Innovative Ideas (Brief description thereof) (Total Score:5/5)

In the previous academic sessions, Government College Sainj, Kullu (H.P.), in keeping with the long-standing academic tradition followed by many colleges in Himachal Pradesh, published its annual college magazine in a conventional four-section format, comprising Hindi, English, Pahari, and Commerce sections. This structure primarily focused on linguistic and discipline-based contributions.

However, in response to changing academic trends, evolving pedagogical approaches, and the growing creative and intellectual interests of students, the college undertook a significant reorientation of its magazine during the academic session 2024–25. The magazine was rebranded and reconceptualized with a student-centric and context-responsive approach, placing students and their socio-cultural surroundings at the core of its vision.

The newly titled magazine, Valley Vibes, was redesigned into four thematic sections, each reflecting a holistic engagement with the local environment, campus culture, creativity, and academic inquiry:

Local Environment – This section explores the Sainj Valley and its surrounding region, documenting local narratives, mythology, indigenous knowledge systems, and the rich biodiversity, including flora and fauna, thereby fostering environmental awareness and regional consciousness among students.

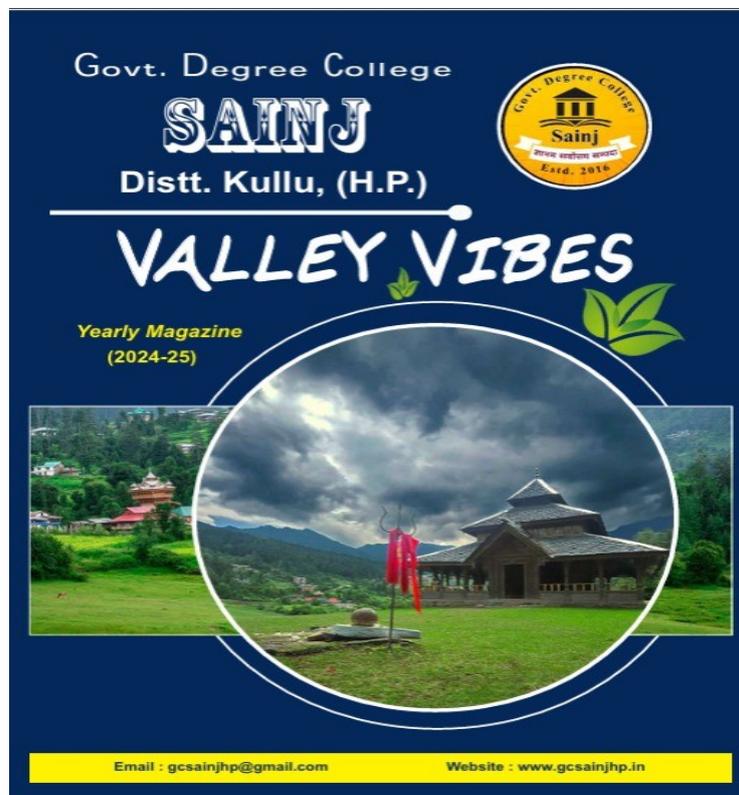

Campus Life – This segment highlights institutional activities, academic events, cultural programmes, workshops, and student achievements, offering a reflective account of campus life during the academic year.

Creative Writing and Arts – Designed to nurture creative expression, this section showcases students' talents in literature, poetry, visual arts, and other creative forms, encouraging originality and aesthetic sensibility.

Academic Insights – This section promotes critical and analytical thinking through research-based articles, reflective essays, and opinion pieces, thereby strengthening students' academic writing, research orientation, and intellectual engagement.

Through this transformation, Valley Vibes has emerged as a dynamic and innovative academic and cultural platform, aligning institutional publication practices with contemporary educational needs and enhancing student participation, creativity, and scholarly development.
